

The invention relates to means for protecting the respiratory organs, in particular to the isolating self-rescue breathing apparatus with the chemically bound oxygen and can be used in above-ground emergencies in coal and shale mines. A breathing apparatus comprises at least one regeneration cartridge, air-duct, facial mask, and the breathing bag.