

The system for data transfer comprises terminal and portable data carrier equipped with nonvolatile semiconductor storage device. Storage device has as counter value region. representing monetary value being written off.