

A device for destruction of vehicle tires with metallic cord has an accumulator of energy, which is connected to an energy source through a converter, which increases the voltage. The invention relates to the branch of utilization of worn vehicle tires with metallic cord.