

The invention relates to compressor building, in particular to refrigeration engineering. A valve unit has a lifting structure, for at least two cylinders, with valve plates and spacer springs installed on it.