

The invention relates to the railroad rolling stock. A railroad transportation means for transportation of road trains contains a frame with loading areas and end boards, installed on the undercarriages, and also detachable wheel supports of isosceles triangular section, whose two faces serve for contact with the wheels.