

The invention relates to medicine, in particular to otolaryngology. A method comprises the reconstruction of the defect using autograft. In particular, the body of the hyoid bone is separated with the fixing muscular peduncle, rotated by 90° and used for replacing the defect of the larynx.