

The proposed transformer contains a magnetic core, a primary winding and a secondary winding, which are arranged at the magnetic core, and a magnetic screen that covers the magnetic core with the windings. The winding are made of insulated wire with coating from soft magnetic material. The screen is made of ferromagnetic bands arranged along the magnetic core. Between the bands of the screen as well as between the bands and the windings, gaps are provided.