

The massaging device for preventing and treating the adenoma of prostate relates to medicine, in particular to the devices for massaging and vibration massaging. The device contains the arched flexible casing with the massaging element designed as the frame with the eccentric rollers. The frame is hinged to the flexible tie-rod and the plunger equipped with the handles.