

This invention relates to engineering intrinsic properties of particles, of articles manufactured by consolidation of particles, and of coatings formed from particles, and more particularly concerns the manufacture of articles and coatings engineered to have preselected thermal conductivities and coefficients of thermal expansion.