

The invention relates to medicine, in particular to balneology, and can be used at exploitation of fields of mineral waters of "Naftusia" type. A method for exploitation of fields of mineral waters with variable properties after extraction of those from interior is implemented through determination of biological activity of mineral water, with prediction of intensity of consumption of those, controlled extraction from field sources, supply to pump-room, heating and dozed delivery to consumers.