

Method for processing solid waste, in particular, household rubbish and town refuse, when preliminary grinded waste is disinfected with solution of formaldehyde or carbamide and mixed with thermoreactive polymer binder containing formaldehyde in compound with phenol, carbamide or melamine. The articles are pressed from obtained mixture and then are maintained in press-forms at raised temperature. The method makes possible utilization of highly contaminated with bacteria waste without preliminary drying.