

The invention relates to the method, which provides braking of transportation means. A method consists in use of a system, which contains ground-based equipment, and at least one antenna for control of stoppage, and onboard equipment.