

The invention relates to the field of magnetic recording in particular the field of nondestructive check of equipment and analog magnetic recording means and can be used in the legal expertise for carrying out research in relation to analog magnetic recording authentication and authentication, check of originality and recording authenticity carried out in such equipment.

The method is based on the signal data comparison in time gaps between information signals in tested and reference recordings made on one of the analog magnetic recording.