

A device for hot casting of ceramic articles is proposed. It contains a slip tank with feed pipe, which is connected with the flange for basing of forms, a mixer and a bath with electric heater for oil heat-transfer agent. The device is additionally equipped with an electric heater located around the feed pipe inside the flange for basing of forms.