

The controller of pressure drop consists of body with inlet channel, chambers of standard and controlled pressure and movable and spring-supported in axial direction piston. The controller is equipped with circular cavity. It is connected to the output channel and surrounds the side surface of the piston.