

The invention relates to the transport means control unit. The unit includes the case, the first printed circuit with electric circuit. The forked part is placed on the reverse side from the first printed circuit of the cooling card. The second printed circuit is placed between the forked part and the cooling card.