

The invention relates to the method of identification of information. The method for identification of information carrier that includes data as a set of different numbers represented by whole numbers of monotone increasing or decreasing succession. Between neighboring numbers marker is set.