

A biostimulator of plant growth and development is created on the basis of humus-containing substances, obtained by means of leaching from vermicompost (a product of vital functions of earth-worms) with adding to a composition thereof humus-containing substances, obtained by means of leaching from solid fuel, brown coal or peat. In doing so the latters are introduced in an amount of 8 - 10 % by volume.