

This invention relates to machine-building, in particular to conrod-piston combustion engines. The power system of combustion engine with two parallel crankshafts kinematically connected to the piston with two con-rods, at that in cylinder plug piston with two working surfaces is placed.