

This invention relates to mechanical arms, in particular to arbalests, and can be used in sports shooting and hunting. A releasing mechanism of arbalest has spring-supported trigger installed in the body of the arbalest, at that it has base connected to the body of the arbalest, lever, this can interact with trigger and is hinged to vertical tooth installed with possibility of turn with respect to horizontal axis of the base, movable link connected to the base with possibility of turn and hinged to the lever.