

The invention relates to design of units for thermal treatment of liquid media under conditions of controlled hydrodynamical cavitation. The unit has circulation pump with rotary drive, flow-through tank placed separately. Its cavity is connected to the input of the pump through recirculation branch pipe and to output of the pump through means for excitation of hydrodynamical cavitation..