

A method for inhibiting the potato disease in bread provides for adding nisin at the stage of kneading the dough components, which is introduced in the amount calculated on the basis of 2000–150000 MU per 1 kg of the flour mass in the dough, owing to which inhibited is the development of spores of Bacillus subtilis and Bacillus mesenterius.