

The utility model relates to medicine, namely to means for the treatment and prevention and can be used for self-massage in musicians, computer operators, etc. A device for stimulating blood circulation in the upper limbs contains the massaging elements enclosed in the elastic double wall chamber. The cavity between the walls is filled with antifriction fluid.