

The invention relates to design of lighting installations that can be used at lighting places of road-transport incidents, crimes, used as light sources at natural disasters, at photographing and filming. Subject of the invention is in increase of area of luminous flux generated by lighting installation and increase of convenience in operation.