

The invention relates to the technology of processing of metals by pressure, in particular, to the manufacturing techniques of reflectors of lighting devices. The method for manufacturing of dome-shaped solids of revolution from sheet metals includes cutting of blank, its preliminary rotational extrusion with uniform hardening and finishing stretching and allows to reach stability of the product shape.