

The invention relates to automated control systems for traffic stream on the roads during their movement using image recognition system and provides for revelation of declared search for vehicles and exercise of statistical service of passing-by vehicles.

The mobile station contains lanterns, camcorders, one or several computers for vehicle identification.