

The invention relates to the field of electrical engineering, in particular to the light sources and can be used mainly in manufacture of high-duty electric incandescent lamps, for example, for using in the storage battery pit candles.