

The invention relates to the by-coking-product industry. A method includes coke cooling in two stages and at the first stage up to the temperatures lower than ones of coke firing by means of mixing thereof with solid heat carrier. Bivalent metal carbonate is used as the solid heat carrier.