

The invention relates to the building mortars and can be used at the building for finishing of internal and external surfaces of buildings and structures, in particular of walls. A building mortar for finishing contains a ground filling agent and a binding substance on the glue base.