

Structural heater has outer and inner casings between which heat-insulation element is placed. Heat insulation element is arranged as cell structure placed in frame. Layers of that structure are formed with cells in rectangular form. At that each cell of next layer is displaced with respect to cell of adjoining layer at width of cell. The invention provides decrease loss of heat.