

A bottle for beverages contains device for comfortable drinking in the form of a plastic horn fixed on the neck of bottle and made with inclination. The horn is arranged with possibility of its placement into the groove on the neck with closing of bottle by cover. The device for comfortable drinking contains inside the bottle small tube, which reaches the bottom of bottle. Invention provides for comfortable and safe drinking of beverage without pouring beverage from the bottle.