

A method for the application of coatings of semiconductor compounds involves the evaporation of liquid phase component in vacuum, heating thereof in the closed volume of synthesizer.