

The invention relates to a method for producing opaque, liquid, frost-resistant, conditioning agents which are stable in terms of cold, to conditioning agents that can be obtained using said method, and to the use of such conditioning agents for conditioning textile fabrics and/or keratin fibres. The inventive agents contain cryoprotectors and defined esterquats.