

A process for the scale-control water treatment comprises magnetization of decarbonized water. Before the magnetization water is saturated with paramagnetic gas. As the paramagnetic gas oxygen (O_2) or nitrogen oxide (NO) is used. The invention provides for considerable reduction of scale formation on the sides of heat exchanger.