

The invention relates to medicine, biology and chemistry and may be used for drug manufacturing. A method for producing N-acylethanolamines provides the use of condensation of ethanolamine and a fatty acid (palmitic, stearic) at the temperature of 180 °C for 90 minutes without a solvent.