

The invention relates to the use of simethicone for the preparation of a medication for the treatment of constipated persons suffering from bloated feeling during the night.