

The invention relates to novel agrochemical formulations for treating plants, said formulations containing propylene carbonate and optionally other additives as cosolvents. The invention also relates to a method for producing said formulations, and to the use thereof for treating plants and/or the habitat thereof, and for increasing the efficacy and plant tolerance of plant protection active ingredients.