

A fire-alarm system with autonomous control radio channel relates to fire security and can be used at any objects, especially extended objects. The system provides continued operation, subsequent, simultaneous transmission and reception of fire alarm control signals. Use of fire alarm devices similar to those used in wire systems in alarm system loops, use of protective signaling facilities in alarm system loops provides high reliability and antijamming ability of the system.