

The invention relates to sensor computing technique and can be used for image sensing by video sensor and for determination of image object position, overall size and area. The device makes it possible to enhance calculation accuracy of number of active elements in line and column and to enhance accuracy of determination of object position, area and centre, this is determined by image binarization, count of number of active elements in line and column by means of pulse counter.