

The method relates to ecology, namely to biological treatment of the soils contaminated with heavy metals. The method includes the preliminary determination of the type and level of contamination by heavy metals, development of a scheme of treatment thereof, seeding and growing of annual plants, mowing and utilization of biomass.