

A glass container (1) has a body part (2), an opening part (3) and at least one identification element (4, 6) which is or are used to sort similar glass containers (1). To improve the visibility and optical recognition of the at least one identification element (4, 6) of the glass container (1), according to the invention the at least one identification element (4) of the glass container (1) is or are situated or formed on the opening part of said container.