

A prefill valve for hydraulic presses contains a housing, a valve, on the stem of which the bushing is mounted acting on the sensor of end displacements, and a compression spring located between this bushing and the housing; the stem interacts with the servo drive. The length of the stem exceeds the height of the housing, and the bushing, the compression spring and the servo drive are mounted from the outer side of the housing on the part protruding from the housing.