

A simulator of heat release source has a metal rod made of high heat-conducting material with heater. At the rod at one of the end surfaces an opening with threading is provided, by means of this one the rod is connected to removable heat-transfer nozzle, one side of this one has respective threading, and the shape and the dimensions of the other side correspond to the shape and the dimensions of heat-receiving surface of the object of heating.