

A method for obtaining scale-free core of ricin seed consists of seed dosage, destruction of seed shell, separating husk from the core on oscillating surface and separating destructed product with the air current. At that, before destruction of seed shell it is oriented along its greater axis and destruction is performed by cutting the seed along the orientated axis.