

Installation for processing of organic waste contains pyrolysis furnace, inside which above the furnace chamber the working chamber is located, it is connected by conduit on the gas phase with the system of condensers and filters. Inside the working chamber the means for heating of waste from within are additionally mounted.