

A system of operational quality control of commercial ore at shipment to the users contains a unit of chemical analysis, a unit of data acquisition, a unit of loading control, a unit of certificate of shipment, an excavator for loading of commercial ore and railroad cars, a well probe device, a mine radiometer, a central processor, a measuring device and a local computer network.