

A vehicle with anti-hijacking marking contains invisible markers in the form of symbols, which are applied on the surface of the vehicle by colorless substance visible under action of UV radiation. The invisible markers in the form of eight last symbols of the identification code of the vehicle are applied by means of the device with colorless fluorescent organic alcohol soluble dye on the surfaces of internal finish of salon. An invisible marker with a quantity of symbols up to eight in the form of password selected by driver is additionally applied on the place determined personally by the driver.