

A pin crusher includes a housing, in which are coaxially located a disk with pins on top on the hollow shaft and a conical-cylindrical drum on continuous lower shaft. The pins are also located on the cylindrical part of the drum and on internal cylindrical surface of housing with possibility of their interaction with each other.