

A drum for milling of powder has a cylindrical housing, which has ability of rotation, on internal surface of which elements for displacing of powder and grinding balls are rigidly fixed. Elements for displacing of powder and grinding balls are made in the form of longitudinally located edges placed along the circle, which ends are fixed in the grooves of the rings pressed in the ends of housing.