

Method for identification and control of quality of building objects according to which beginning from first stages of building one performs fixation of all stages of building on electron carriers, for fixation of all stages of building one in addition uses video-equipment and in addition fixes on electronic carries design documentation with its comparison to electronic data about stages of building. After that all photo and video data on electronic carriers are transferred to computer data base with formation of data base that is afterwards fixed on material carrier.